ENDOWMENT MANAGEMENT

A growing endowment helps TCU build and sustain a high margin of academic excellence

The Texas Christian University endowment provides independence and stability as well as a means of achieving and sustaining a high margin of excellence. As TCU's position rises in higher education, the University will increasingly compete for talent with prestigious peer institutions that have substantial endowments. A robust and growing endowment, therefore, is needed to sustain a competitive advantage and to provide enduring support for critical goals. In short, a strong endowment goes hand-in-hand with becoming a powerful academic community that prepares global leaders with excellence, perspective and integrity to be a force for the greater good. The cumulative effects of the endowment's growth over the decades, plus new endowment gifts from alumni, parents and friends, have had a significant impact upon academic excellence at TCU. For example, the University's U.S. News & World Report ranking has placed it among the nation's top 100 universities for the past 10 years.

At TCU, the endowment refers to the long-term investment assets of the University. These assets are invested in perpetuity. Funds enter the endowment from two primary sources: gifts from donors and additions to long-term savings that are set aside each year by the Board of Trustees. Over the years, donors have contributed to the endowment, creating endowed funds that support scholarships, faculty positions, academic programs and other top priorities. In Fiscal Year 2020, endowment income provided for 9.9 percent of the University's budgeted operating expenses.

Currently, the endowment totals $1.8 billion and the National Association of College and University Business Officers' most recent annual survey ranks it 65th in the nation in asset value. While this signifies that TCU has encouraging momentum behind the endowment, the numbers also reflect that the University needs to further build the endowment to ensure that resources are available to recruit talented and diverse students regardless of their financial situation; accelerate advancements in teaching, research and entrepreneurial activities; and attract and retain pre-eminent scholars and rising stars to further enhance its national reputation.

Professional Stewardship

Endowed funds at TCU are invested by the University's Chief Investment Officer with oversight by the Investment Committee of the Board of Trustees. The CIO is responsible for working closely with the Investment Committee to develop and adhere to an investment policy that governs decisions intended to maximize returns within appropriate levels of risk. The Investment Committee and the TCU administration seek to fulfill two endowment objectives: (1) to provide annual budgetary support and (2) to preserve the long-term value of the endowment for future generations. The endowment is invested using a broad array of investment strategies designed to balance annual payout needs with the desire for long-term growth. The diversified portfolio of assets includes global equities, marketable alternatives, private equity, venture capital, fixed income, real estate and minerals.

Endowed Funds

Each new endowed fund purchases shares in TCU's endowed investment pool, which operates in a manner similar to a mutual fund. Endowed funds are named and used according to the donor's wishes. Any annual spendable income from an endowed fund is restricted and can only be expended for the fund's specified purpose.

Establishing an Endowed Fund

With each investment in the endowment, donors give TCU the confidence and independence to proactively pursue a bold vision and expand the University's ability to innovate and lead through its contributions to teaching, scholarship and service to society. The amount required to establish an endowed fund varies, depending on the fund's purpose — the income on the investment must be sufficient to achieve the donor's goals and the University's priorities. Endowed scholarships, for instance, can be created with gifts ranging from $100,000 to $1 million or more. The cost to fully endow a student's tuition today is just over $1 million. Endowed faculty positions can be established with gifts of $500,000 to $10 million or more. Some donors choose to contribute over time, building toward the level at which their fund will be endowed. Gifts to new and existing funds are often part of an estate/legacy plan.

Spending Policy

For Fiscal Year 2021, the spending rate is 5.0 percent, within the range considered the optimum sustainable payout rate to secure long-term value. The spending rate is applied to the average of a series of 12 quarterly market values to derive a fund's payout for one fiscal year. Each year, the Board of Trustees sets the endowment's spending rate at a level that provides a reliable source of income while maintaining the endowment's long-term purchasing power.

Lead On: A Campaign for TCU is the university's most ambitious philanthropic campaign in its nearly 150-year history. The $1 billion goal of this campaign will strengthen TCU's people, programs and endowment. For more information visit leadon.tcu.edu/campaign.

ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIPS PREPARE GLOBAL CITIZENS

Scholarship support ensures TCU can attract and compete for the most talented and deserving applicants. It also helps create a more socioeconomically and geographically diverse student population, which better prepares all TCU students to relate to the global community in their lives and careers. While here, students with endowed scholarships can focus less on college debt and more on building the knowledge, outlook and confidence they need to make a positive impact on the world.

ENDOWED FACULTY POSITIONS HELP BUILD A POWERFUL ACADEMIC COMMUNITY

At TCU, professors challenge their students and invest in their personal growth. Endowed positions, such as chairs, professorships and fellowships, support the long-term status and standing of the University and help attract and retain pre-eminent scholars and rising academic stars. Increasing the number of endowed faculty positions also strengthens TCU's teacher-scholar model by supporting both teaching and research activities.

“*In my Research and Evidence Practice course for undergraduate nursing students, I invite them to see the larger picture of how research is a caring act. We, as nurses, can improve patient outcomes through research, by knowing that which is most essential to being. As the Paula R. and Ronald C. Parker Endowed Professor in Nursing, I live and breathe this belief, pursuing research projects that promote the health literacy skills of health care providers, hospital systems and patients, so that they can communicate health information in understandable terms. The Parker Professorship will allow me to include both undergraduate and graduate students in all phases of the research process.”

“ I had the incredible opportunity to serve as Dr. Linda K. Hughes’ Addie Levy Research Associate. In this role, I was able to learn firsthand how a top scholar manages several projects, network with other important scholars in my field and even contribute a chronology for an edited volume published by a major academic press. I often tell other graduate students that working as a research associate for an endowed chair can teach you more in one year than all of your years of coursework together! Besides the amazing professional opportunities that come from working with Dr. Hughes, I am endlessly thankful for the mentorship she provides and for her shining example as a woman in academia. ”

“ I'm grateful for the Hamilton Family eleven40seven Endowed Fund because it guarantees that eleven40seven will be published each semester, which allows TCU students working on staff to have real-world publishing experiences that prepare them for jobs in the industry. In our 15-year history, several students from the eleven40seven staff have gained admission to the Denver Publishing Institute. One student even landed a position at The New Yorker.
